ABOUT ME

I have been building and running high-engagement social media pages for years, learning platform algorithms and fan communities through direct, hands-on trial and error rather than corporate theory. I know how to edit short-form content, time posts for maximum reach, write hooks that actually stop people from scrolling, and package music, visual assets, and updates in a way that resonates with real audiences. Across multiple independently grown accounts, my content has generated tens of thousands of organic interactions, sustained high story retention, and earned direct recognition from global artists and their management teams.
